Daniel Fallins is an exciting leg-spin bowling prospect who has been part of Cricket Australia's National Performance squad and is currently involved with the New South Wales Blues.

Fallins shot to prominence after his exploits for the Cricket Australia XI in November 2017. In two matches against the touring England side, the Sutherland District star took 9 wickets, including figures of 5-73 (22) in the first match.

He took four of the top six, including the notable scalps of Stoneman, Vince, Root, and Bairstow, then hit Anderson in front to capture his maiden 5-wicket haul.

After dismissing Crane in the second innings, to complete a 6-wicket match haul, Fallins took figures of 3-127 (37) in the next match, again taking the wickets of Stoneman, Vince, and Bairstow.

He was subsequently picked up by the Melbourne Stars playing 2 Big Bash matches in January 2018, before 2 Shield matches for NSW the following month.

Whilst Fallins has been around the senior squad, which includes the likes of Nathan Lyon and Steve O'Keefe, he hasn't featured since, yet he hopes to play State cricket in future.

Whilst known for his leg-spin, Fallins is a talented batter who produced scores of 15* and 29* against England, then whacked an impressive century (113) in a Futures League match against Western Australia U23s in November 2018.

At Grade level, he bats up and down the Sutherland District order, often opening in the PGs and middle-lower order in first grade, where he boasts a handful of half-centuries.

The talented all-rounder is an exciting prospect and is seeking an opportunity abroad for the 2022 season.
