Edward Hurst (22), a batting all-rounder from Lancashire, England.

Hurst is a determined and versatile all-rounder from Lancashire, eager to make his mark after prioritising his university studies over the past few seasons. Now, having completed his degree, he is set for his first full cricket season in four years and is ready to make an impact.

For the 2024 season, Hurst will be a key middle-order player for Mawdesley Cricket Club in the Northern Premier Cricket League, where he aims to contribute with both bat and ball.

During his university years, he was a standout performer and leader for Plymouth University 1st XI, captaining the side since 2021 and guiding them to promotion into the top tier of university cricket in 2023.

Now eager to take his game to Australia, Hurst is looking for a full season of competitive cricket while fully immersing himself in club culture on and off the field.

A committed, self-financing cricketer who will be a valuable asset to any club.
