Immaculate Nakisuuyi is one of the most experienced and capped players in Ugandan women's cricket, a genuine bowling all-rounder who has represented Uganda Women in 114 Women's T20 Internationals since making her debut against Scotland at the 2018 ICC Women's World Twenty20 Qualifier in Amstelveen.

A right-arm off-break bowler and right-handed middle-order batter, Nakisuuyi has amassed 1,638 runs at an average of 20.73, including two half-centuries and a highest score of 68*, while her 68 wickets at an outstanding average of 16.44 (economy 5.05, best figures 4/15) make her one of the most reliable wicket-takers in Associate women's cricket. She currently sits 56th in the ICC's T20I All-Rounder rankings.

Nakisuuyi's longevity is remarkable: across eight years of international cricket, she has represented Uganda at multiple ICC Women's T20 World Cup Qualifiers, the ICC Women's T20 World Cup Africa Qualifier, the Kwibuka Women's T20I Tournament, the Women's African Games, and numerous quadrangular and bilateral series across the continent and beyond, remaining a first-choice selection as recently as Uganda's tour of Namibia in July 2026.

Alongside her extensive international career, Nakisuuyi has an enormous body of domestic and invitational experience in Uganda, having featured for a wide range of teams across the Cricket Uganda structure — currently turning out for VPs — amassing close to 300 matches, nearly 5,000 runs, and more than 230 wickets in domestic cricket across all formats.

A vastly experienced campaigner with proven longevity and genuine all-round value, Nakisuuyi brings a rare combination of durability, big-match international experience, and skill with both bat and ball.
