Marlon Richards is a seasoned former professional cricketer and captain of Trinidad and Tobago, known for his consistency, leadership, and impact in West Indian domestic cricket. A right-arm medium-fast bowler, Richards built a reputation as a reliable and disciplined seamer capable of delivering long, economical spells and key breakthroughs under pressure.

Since making his debut in 2013, Richards has featured in 39 first-class matches and 9 List A games. He has claimed 87 first-class wickets at an impressive average of 26.97, including standout figures of 5/46, and added a further 12 List A wickets, headlined by a five-wicket haul of 5/36. Notably, his career economy rate of just 2.95 runs per over in first-class cricket underscores his elite control and ability to build pressure across spells.

A genuine bowling all-rounder, Richards also contributed valuable runs down the order, registering two first-class half-centuries with a top score of 60—demonstrating his all-around value to the team.

Currently representing Central Sports Cricket Club, Marlon remains actively involved in competitive cricket and is now seeking new challenges, including opportunities in the Legends League and other global T20 competitions. With his experience, skill set, and professionalism, Richards remains a potent asset both on and off the field.
