Muhammad Sarwar is a high class all rounder currently playing first class cricket in Pakistan.

A genuine all rounder, Sarwar bats in the top order and is a skilful seamer to boot. A well respected cricketer, he has enjoyed a fine career to date and is perhaps unlucky to have not represented his country as yet.

At the time of writing, he has a first class batting average just shy of 30, with x2 100s and x8 50s to his name, with a best score of 148. In List A cricket he has perhaps excelled the most, with a batting average of 35.52 with a top score of 119. Considering he mainly bats in the middle order these are indeed impressive numbers. His bowling has perhaps been under utilised at professional level, mainly due to conditions, he operates as a first or second change seamer. However we feel his style of bowling would be ideally suited for UK conditions. He is highly skilled and swings the ball prodigiously, we think he would be a real handful with ball in hand, his career best 4/32 taken in T20 cricket is evidence of his quality too.

He is regarded as a highly valuable all rounder, and has a reputation of doing what the team requires and fulfilling a number of roles throughout his career.

Muhammad is now keen to head overseas for his maiden trip as a club cricket professional. he is in fine recent form and would represent a high quality option for any club seeking a genuine all rounder with match winning potential this summer.
