Mohammad Ismail is an exciting young talent rapidly making waves in Pakistan's domestic cricket scene. A right-arm quick with genuine aggression and skill, Ismail has already made a significant mark in first-class cricket—despite still being in his teens. With 95 wickets at an impressive average of 24.92 from just 25 matches, including 7 five-wicket hauls, he has shown a remarkable knack for consistency and the temperament to perform under pressure.

The 2024/25 season proved to be a breakout year for Ismail. He finished as the third leading wicket-taker in the President's Trophy with 41 wickets at 22.14, underlining his prowess in the longer format. In the National T20 Cup, he continued to impress, claiming 11 wickets at a stunning average of 12.81—second only to the tournament's top performer. Roll on the 2025/26 season, and Ismail backed up his previous summer with a further 32 wickets at 30.09 across his 11 first-class matches. These numbers are a reflection not only of his raw ability but of a maturity well beyond his years.

A former Pakistan U19 representative, Ismail has transitioned seamlessly from youth cricket to the senior level, evolving from a player with promise into a genuine force in domestic competition. His high energy, relentless attitude, and ability to swing the ball at a lively pace have earmarked him as one of Pakistan's most exciting fast bowling prospects.

Looking to broaden his cricketing experience and refine his craft further, Ismail has set his sights on a UK stint for the 2026 season. With English conditions known to reward seamers who can generate movement and maintain discipline, his skillset seems perfectly suited to thrive. In addition to his bowling, he offers useful contributions with the bat from the lower-middle order, providing valuable depth and versatility to any side.

For clubs seeking a young, hungry, and highly talented cricketer capable of making an immediate impact with the ball and contributing with the bat, Mohammad Ismail presents a compelling option for the upcoming season.
