Romario Greaves is an accomplished spin bowling all-rounder making a strong mark in Caribbean domestic cricket. Since making his List A debut in October 2022, the right-arm off-spinner and dependable middle-order batter has been a consistent performer in over 30 matches, showcasing both control with the ball and composure at the crease.

Representing the Combined Campuses and Colleges—alongside renowned West Indies talents such as Kieran Powell, Akeem Jordan, and Chemar Holder—Greaves has cemented his role as the team’s frontline off-spinner. He forms a formidable spin partnership with fellow CricX client and left-arm maestro Larry Edward, creating a balanced and dangerous spin duo that has troubled top domestic batting line-ups.

Now 30, Greaves is entering his prime and is eager to test himself on the global stage. With prior experience in UK conditions, including a productive stint with Pontblyddyn in North Wales during 2016 (446 runs at 26.23 and 28 wickets at 21.32), he is actively seeking a return to the UK for the upcoming season. Looking beyond, Greaves also has his sights set on opportunities in franchise leagues and North America as he continues to build on his cricketing journey.
